-Yesterday the grand closing scene of the war commenced in Washington-the two days review of the armles of the Republic. A more imposing military pageant has never been witnessed than is presented by the soldiers of the Republic marching through the streets of the capital, for whose preservation they have toiled and bled during these long years of carnage. Four distinct armies, comprising probably not far from one hundred and seventy-five thousand men, are now, for the first time. brought face to face, mingling their cheers and shouts of triumph, vieing with each other in the exhibition of victorious standards soiled with the sm-ke and dust of battle, and in the display of love and admiration for their great chief, never before even by very many of them. A proud day is it for the Lieutenant General, whose guiding hand has controlled the movement of this vast multitude of stalwart braves, leading them to victory, glory and final of Abraham Lincoln, to be comprised in triumph. The New Series of Seven-Thirties. That there has been a great, and, at first sight, an unaccountable decrease in the amount of subscriftions to the Seven-Thirty Loan is apparent to the most careless reader of J sy Cooke's bulletins. Week before last this great popular loan was being taken with a rapidity unprecedented in the financial history of this or any other nation. The end of the war assured the people of its security, and its other advantages were so potent that the popular desire to invest grew greater and greater, daily. And so the subscriptions to the loan mount ed higher and higher day by day, until, on Saturday, May 13th, the days snbscription reached the enormous aggregate of thirty millions, and the subscriptions for the week towered up colossally to NIBETY MILLIONS OF DOLLARS. On the Monday following a new series of the loan (and the last) was opened, but the decadence in subscriptions was at once painfully manifest. On that day it was only four millions; on Tuesday only one million seven hundred thousand; and the total subscribtions for the week amounts to only twelve millions, or less than half that for a single day of the week preceding.

What is the cause of this sudden, not to | pathy to Mrs. Lincoln. say alarming, decrease? Mr. Jay Cooke charges it to an apprehension, supposed to be prevalent, that the money market will ne stringent. This is only an ostensible reason, for Mr. Cooke knows, as well as any body else, that nobody is troubled ment, and that even if the subscriptions loan is taken, the currency in circulation would not be appreciably diminished. The decrease cannot be accounted for by any fear of a tight money market.

What then is its real cause? It is obviously found in the conditions in regard to the interest affixed to the new series of the loan. Secretary McCullough, observing is the absorbing topic of excitement and the avidity with which the loan was being anticipation among all classes. The turn-"gobbled up," determined to avail himself out of spectators promises to be immense, of the popular enthusiasm by reducing the rate of interest -for such is the real effect of the provision in the stipulations for the of the provision in the same is optional with the their parade, and previously, with reference sense to getting into position. The cavalry Secretary of the Treasury to pay the interest on the loan at the rate of six per cent. in specie, or seven and three-tenths per and General Dwight's division of the 19th cent. in currency. Of course this is a re- Corps. The 5th Corps will follow, and the duction of twenty per cent. on the income of public stock-holders on the resumption and where practicable will move battery of specie payments. What is the result? front. The regiments will be formed in The people are shrewd enough to perceive common of companies, each company to the change and to nurse their present investments rather than buy further at the new rate, and the subscriptions falls off new rate, and the subscriptions falls off Nineteenth street. It is estimated that at from ninety millions to twelve millions a this rate 8,000 men per hour can pass the week. Mr. McCallough's device displayed reviewing officer. the shrewdness of a banker, but not the foresight of a statesman. He should have taken warning from the mistakes of his predecessors. He should have remembered that a similar dicaster followed the attempted execution of a similar scheme for a similar purpose, in the case of the change from the five-twenties to the ten-forties which sent gold up to two hundred and fifty, and threw the whole financial system the country into disorder. And if he is wise he will redeem his error and withdraw the objectionable "option." If he does so he will find that no fears of a tight money market will prevent the people from taking the loan with eagerness, and that instead of dragging along at the rate of a million and a haif a day, the whole series will be subscribed for in two weeks.

Mr. Jay Cooke, to be sure, in announcing to the people the change in the rate of interest, indulges in a little special pleading in the remark that "the return to specie payments, in the event of which only will this option be availed of, would so reduce and equalize prices as that purchases made wish six per cenf. in gold would be fully equal to those made with seven and three-tenths in currency." Butit was the very anticipation of a speedy return to as having been erected from the proceeds specie payments—the very belief that sev- of the Confederate loan, and as being inen and three-tenths per cent, in currency would soon be equal to seven and three-tenths per cent in gold—that made the Seven-Thirties so good an investment. It was this sublime confidence in the security which, according to the custom in that city, would soon be equal to seven and threeof the Government and the financial resources of the nation that called out the sources of the nation that called out the counstance which gave plausibility to the wonderful subscriptions of week before town talk of its being the sometime residence of the fugitive President of the last. It is obvious in this point of view, that the "option" of the Secretary of the Tressury is equivalent to a matter of fact reduction from seven and three-tenths to six per cent. We hope Mr. McCullough will let wall enough slone. It is useless for him to undertake to dictate a rate of interest. The best course left for him is to revoke his option. Then, and not before, will the subscriptions to the seven-thirties resume their connect more or less intimately with each former dimensions.

Canadian Sympathy for Blackbarn. Dr. Blackburn, the gentle specimen of Southern chivalry, who is charged with trying to import yellow fever into the infant schools and orphan asylums of New York, Philadelphia and other cities, in order to destroy as many of the Northern people as possible, has been suddenly transformed into a martyr by some of the Canadian papers. The tender solicitude for his health manifested by the Toronto Leader will be noted, while the denuncistions of those who have endeavored to call him to account will satisfactorily settle the status of our particular friend, the editor of that sheet. The Montreal Mineres says : " Dr. Blackbure, for more than a year past a guest at the St. Lawrence Hall, and accused of forwarding from Bermuda bales of infected goods to spread the pest in Northern cities, has been arrested through a warrant issued in Toronto. Dr. Blackburn has become a Catholic, and received baptism the day before yesterday at St. Lawrence Hall.

Another Account of His Capture .. His *prearance-Conversation with Stephens and seagan, &c., &c. [Cor. espondence of the New York Tribune.]

DEPAILS OF THE CAPTURE Through the kindness of Lieutenant Colonel Pritchard, in charge of the prisoners, your correspondent was permitted to visit the steamer, and learned from the Colonel and others the particulars of the capture which was made by a detachment of 128 men of the 4th Michigan Cavalry, under Lieutenant Colonel B. D. Pritchard, about me mile from Irwinsville, Gs. and about 100 miles southesst of Macon. The Colo-nel learned on the 9th instant where they mel learned on the 9th instant where they were encamped, and just before daylight, on the 10th, surrounded the camp. It was supposed that Davis had a considerable force as guard, and a considerable fight was expected. By an unfortunate, and so far unaccountable accident, one part of the force fired upon another, and before the mistake was discovered two men were killed and six others slightly wounded. Caned and six others slightly wounded. Cap tain Hudson had pisced a strong guard around the tent where Davis was supposed to be, and when the firing commenced, thinking his duty called him to the fight, he left the tent in charge of a Corporal, with orders to let no one pass out. The Gorporal went to the door, and was mel by a lady, who proved to be Mrs. Davis, and who said that the tent was occupied by ladies, and she hoped they would be permitted to dress before being disturbed.

HOW JEFF. WAS DRESSED. Very soon, she sgain and voluntarily appeared at the door, with another person in petticate, morning dress and a woolen closk, with a hood closely drawn over the head and a pail on her arm.

A "MOTHER." Corporal ordered halt! which of course was obeyed, but Mrs. D. feelingly appealed to the Corporal to allow her mother to go to the corporat to show her mother to go to the spring for a pail of water—it was hard, even if they were prisoners, not to be allowed to get a little water for their morning ablutions. Mr. Corp real just then observed that the morning dress was not quite long enough to conceal a pair of boots ooking rather too heavy for "mother" wear, and, with his pencer carbine pointed at the aged lady's bead, ordered her to re-move that closk. The argument was per-su-sive, even to the chivalry. The disguise was removed and Jeff Davis appeared in COULDN'T STAND THE MUSIC. After a hurried breakfast the party was put in marching order—the prisoners, in ambulances, preceded by the band of the 4th Michigan Cavairy, playing first "Yau-kee Doodle," which had eviden'ly a de-pressing influence on the feelings of Mr. Davis; but when in a few minutes, the band struck into the somewhat familiar air of "John Brown's Body's Marching On," it was too much for endurance, and he ac-tually fell prostrate in the ambulance, and was kept concealed from view by his friends for a considerable time.

COLONEL PRITCHARD. Colonel Pritchard is a noble specimen of a man and a model soldier. He is modest and unassuming, but brave as a lion, and ready to lead wherever his duty calis. As others appeared to be engrossing the attention of Mr. Stephens, it fell to my lot to converse chiefly with Mr. Reagan. He is a heavy, stout and somewhat lethargic man, but, in conversation shows he has a great deal of ability. He desired particularly to know what policy would be instituted in the way of reconstruction, believing that a humane one would be the est in order to conciliate and hold the When I advanced the idea that military governments would be inaugurated in the States respectively, that probly the people, in their primary capacity, would be called upon to re-establish civil authority, under governmental restrictions, which should forever preclude any recurrence of rebellion, I found, upon requiring an expression from him, that he did not think there would be a great deal of difficulty, provided disfranchi ement and conn were not carried too far. No slavery, no assumption of the Confederate debt, no more secession—these points would be conceded at one; but the prohiwould be conceded at one; but the pron-bition of every one from the ballot-box who had held official position, and a gen-eral appropriation of rebel property, and the rights of suffrage to all, were points, in his estimation, which should either be omitted or very materially medified, if we were really desirous of bringing out good-will to the government and fraternal relations among ourselves. Without mincing, I put the thing at him as strong as possible, and precisely as strong as the govern-ment should do. There is a great deal lost with Southern men, I find, in failing to come up to exactly what you mean, and to what your judgment gives cordial as-sent to. A firm man they like and re-spect; an irresolute one they will use as they best can, situated as they are at pres-

At the head of the stairs, as we passed up, still sat Jefferson Davis in the corner, his hat slouched over his eyes; he was still reading. The windows, full of curious observers, attracted no attention from him whatever. Once, while we were in the cabin, he came down and handed Mr. Stephens a paper and immediately retired. Our conversation was hushed instantly. No one desired to be made known to him, and probably, if the move had been in that direction by his associates, no one but what would have resolutely refused the proffered honor; and yet there were officers and civ-ilians among us whose greeting, given in sincerity, and with ordinary sympathy over misfortune, he might have coveted. He seemed to stand before us as the embodi-ment of the infamous rebellion and its stendant cruelties—as the deliberate author of our national woss, and consequently as great criminal. There was no disposition to treat him rudely; no offensive remarks were made in his presence. It w s recognized by all that the strong hand of the government was upon him, and that in
